

Clean beauty that's kind to the planet

We founded Maison Louis Marie on the principles of composing clean luxury fragrances while doing good for our planet: our formulations are as clean, natural, and sustainable as we can make them and our packaging is made from recycled materials whenever possible. In order to amplify our positive environmental practices, we've partnered with three powerful environmental non-profits that make sure our business gives back to our planet.

National Forest Foundation

The National Forest Foundation (NFF) works closely with the United States Forest Service to plant native trees in areas desperately in need: our donations help plant roughly 10,025 trees a month throughout our U.S. forests. Reforestation directly impacts the decrease of carbon in our atmosphere, forest health & resiliency, watershed health and the protection of the habitats of thousands of species that depend on national forest habitats.

1% for the Planet

Since its inception, 1% For the Planet has helped over 250 million dollars towards environmental non profits around the world: our partnership with them ensures that 1% of our annual revenue is fully donated to environmental causes.

Climate Neutral

Climate Neutral holds us accountable by calculating all of the emissions it takes to create our products and ship them to your doorstep: we then offset that total carbon output for the year by investing in climate change solutions that take the equivalent amount of carbon out of the environment.
